

Dear FCC,

I work odd hours requiring me to sleep during hours when telemarketers would call.

I do not want the state of Wisconsin no call list to be discontinued; it has enabled me to have better sleep periods so that I am able to perform my duties associated with train movements throughout Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota.

My alertness level when on the job must always be on high to the ever changing conditions, without the list in place telemarketers would be interrupting my sleep and cause me to be less alert.

I would like to be included in your efforts to stop the elimination of the state no-call list.

Ever since I signed up for the list; when it first came out the change was profound, I was no longer being awakened by someone trying to sell me garbage bags or whatever.

I think the list should be changed and that when you sign up you should be on it until you decide you do not want to be on it anymore. Not the current 2 years as it stands now.

The bankers association that is challenging the law is just trying to make an extra buck by selling our private information to telemarketers; which should be illegal anyway. I do not agree with their motives for challenging this law and think they need to be educated about what the people of the State of Wisconsin want, they want the ability to control who calls them, they don't want to be called by a salesman on the phone - that's why people go to the store - to shop for what they need, or they could even call someone and have it delivered - but that is a consumer calling a business to do business, not a business calling a consumer to try and create business.

I think the FCC would be making a huge mistake in taking away something that 80% of Wisconsin residents have signed up for.

That statistic alone should send a big message to them; anyone that would try to remove the list would fall from public favor, they would lose my vote and my wife's'.

With my utmost support for the State of Wisconsin NO-Call list,
